Rothamsted Insect Survey Data Sharing Statement

The Rothamsted Insect Survey ("RIS") data collection is the property of Rothamsted Research Limited ("RRES", "we", "us" or "our"). It constitutes an internationally significant and unique resource funded by public money and contributed to by a network of volunteer, citizen scientists. We therefore aim to make the data available as a public good, with as few restrictions as possible, to encourage scientific enquiry, collaboration, and innovation. We are making RIS data available under (i) a Creative Commons Attribution-NonCommercial 4.0 International Licence (CC BY-NC 4.0) https://creativecommons.org/licenses/by-nc/4.0/ or such as up-to-date version of such licence as may be published from time to time and (ii) this data sharing statement, which shall prevail in case of conflict with any Creative Commons Attribution-NonCommercial licence which may otherwise apply from time to time.

When using the RIS data you agree to abide by and be legally bound by all the terms of this data sharing statement, including the Creative Commons Attribution Non-Commercial, these Conditions of Use, How to Cite RIS Data and the Additional Legal Terms set out below. Non-compliance constitutes a breach of the licence granted to you by Rothamsted Research Limited to use RIS data and will be prosecuted by us.

I. Conditions of Use of RIS data

1. Where RIS data is presented in a published or unpublished work, either in original or derived form, such as a graphic or summary statistics, you must always use the following attribution statement to acknowledge the source of the information:
   Contains data supplied by the Rothamsted Insect Survey, Rothamsted Research.

2. In accordance with section II below, you must cite the RIS dataset using the recommended data citation in any published work using the data:
   RIS (2021). Rothamsted Insect Survey Online Database, Rothamsted Research
   10.23637/rothamsted.987q7

3. If you use RIS data in published or unpublished work, we request you notify us of the use. As with data citations, understanding where and how RIS data is being used helps us to report impact to our funder, the Biotechnology and Biological Sciences Research Council (BBSRC), Polaris House, North Star Avenue, Swindon, SN2 1UH.

4. You are allowed to make scientifically reasonable changes to the RIS dataset, but you must indicate what changes you have made and you must not in any way indicate or suggests (directly or indirectly) that we endorse your changer or your use of our RIS data.

5. If you require significant support from Rothamsted Scientists to compile, understand or analyse a RIS dataset we request co-authorship on publications using the RIS data in accordance with standard academic practice. Please agree authorship arrangements directly with our scientists.

6. The RIS data is published 'as is'. To the fullest extent permitted by law, any warranties, representations, conditions and other terms implied by statute or common law are excluded from this licence and Conditions of Use. In particular, we do not make any warranties or representations that the RIS data (i) conforms with any description made by us prior to your use, (ii) is free from any errors, defects or inaccuracies, (iii) is of satisfactory quality or (iv) is fit for any purpose held out by us or assumed by you (whether or not you have discussed this with us).

7. To the fullest extent permitted by law, we shall not be liable to you, whether in contract, or (including negligence), for breach of statutory duty, or otherwise, arising under or in connection with the RIS data, your use of the RIS data, for loss of profits, loss of business, loss of agreements or contracts, injury or damage occurring to any person or property, loss of use or corruption of software, data or information or any indirect or consequential loss.

8. We may publish corrected or updated versions of the RIS data without notice. All published datasets and databases are version controlled.

9. You may build and provide access to non-commercial products or services, based wholly or in part on the RIS data and always subject to these Conditions of Use. Any access that you may provide to such derived products and services to any third parties must be restricted to non-commercial uses and non-commercial purposes in accordance with section 12 below.

10. You MUST NOT misrepresent the RIS dataset. If you have any doubts about interpretation of the data, please contact data.ris@rothamsted.ac.uk and they will be happy to support you.

11. You MUST NOT attempt to pass off, present, or otherwise imply RIS data as your own.

12. You MUST NOT use RIS data for commercial advantage or monetary compensation, including (but without limitation):

    a) renting, leasing, selling or sublicensing the RIS data either wholly or in part.

    b) renting, leasing, selling or sublicensing or otherwise distribute products based either wholly, or in part, on the data.

    c) developing and/or providing access to products or services in a manner which is commercial where those products and services are based either wholly or in part on the data.

If you wish to make any commercial use of RIS data, or are in any doubt whether your purported use complies with the provisions of these Conditions of Use please contact data.ris@rothamsted.ac.uk to discuss your proposal.

13. If you are uncertain how best to use the RIS dataset or do not understand some aspect of the dataset, the accompanying metadata and supporting information or conditions of use, please contact data.ris@rothamsted.ac.uk for support.

II. How to Cite RIS Data

14. RIS data must be properly cited if re-used or referred to in any publication or other output. Using correct RIS dataset citation is important for:

    a) formally acknowledging the author's sources,
    b) making finding source data easier,
    c) supporting reproducible research,
    d) allowing the impact of datasets to be tracked and reported.

15. You must ensure RIS data is correctly cited and includes the dataset's Domain Object Identifier (DOI), either where it is presented or in the reference list of any publications, reports or other outputs which

III. Additional Legal Terms

16. Our licence to you to use the RIS data is governed by all the terms of this data sharing statement.

17. Nothing in this licence is intended to, or shall be deemed to, establish any partnership or joint venture between us and you, constitute either party the agent of the other Party, or authorise either party to make or enter into any commitments for or on behalf of the other Party.

18. You confirm that you are acting on your own behalf and not for the benefit of any other person.

19. This licence constitutes the entire agreement between us and you and supersedes and extinguishes all previous agreements, promises, assurances, warranties, representations and understandings between us and you (whether written or oral) relating to its subject matter.

20. This licence, together with any dispute or claim (including non-contractual disputes or claims) arising out of or in connection with it or its subject matter or formation shall be governed by and construed in accordance with the law of England and Wales. By using the RIS data, you irrevocably agree that the courts of England and Wales shall have exclusive jurisdiction to settle any dispute or claim (including non-contractual disputes or claims) arising out of or in connection with this licence, its subject matter or formation.
